Jason Montclair, young and financially independent native New Yorker, shuns the world of big business, which was the cause of his parents' death, searching for something more worthwhile to dedicate his life to.

While on a honeymoon safari in the jungles of Kenya, he and his bride Stephanie acquire the ability to summon, at will, the most outstanding quality of each of half-a-dozen of History's most remarkable individuals.

Their decision to accept and use these powers gives birth to the SEARCH Investigative Agency, the vehicle through which they channel their newly-acquired abilities to help those in need.

When Milburn "The Crow" Crowley and his gang of hoodlums take a group of children, including the young cousin of Bobbie Stewart, Stephanie's closest friend, hostage at an inner city school — demanding in exchange for their lives a large sum of money and an aircraft to leave the country, they get both ... and they also get, to their regret, the intervention of the Search team.

This fast-paced account of the genesis of the Search team and their adventures, you will find hard to put down.
