

About the Author

Victor Marquis was born in Castries, St. Lucia, in the Caribbean. In 1964 he emigrated, with his mother, brother and sister, to Montreal, Canada.

He lived there for the next twenty years, acquiring Canadian citizenship and working in the field of accounting. He married in Canada, and raised three sons.

He returned to St. Lucia in 1983, to continue in the world of business and accounting. He presently alternates residence between the two countries.

He writes a weekly column for St. Lucia's premier newspaper, the Voice, and in 1998 successfully published his first book, entitled "Of Cabbages and Kings", consisting of a collection of selected articles from his column.

He has also produced two volumes of material for children in the Caribbean.

Culturally as Canadian as he is Caribbean, his North American background is the inspiration for this present work, presenting the genesis of the Search team, set in the concrete jungles of New York — with a touch of the equatorial jungles of Africa.

Mr. Marquis is presently at work on the production of a second SEARCH adventure.
